THE PRESIDENT AND MRS. HAYES AT FORTRESS MONROE.

A Visit to the Virginia Capes-The Day at Harrisburg -- Reading the Declaration at Montgomery, Ala. FORTRESS MONROE, July 4.-The President and Mrs. Hays, Webb C., and Burchard Hayes, accompanied by lion, John Sherman, Geo. W. McCrary. Chas. Devens and Richard W. Thompson with a party of ladies and gentlemen arrived here on the Tallapoosa this morning. They were met by General Getty and his staff and command headed by the Band which paraded on the wharf to receive the distinguished visiters. They proceeded to General Getty's quarters where the officers were presented, after which they repaired to the ramparts and witnessed some target practice with fifteen inch guns and at 1 o'clock were partly re-embarked on the Tallapoosa and sailed for the Capes returning at 8 p. m. to witness the fireworks. They will leave for Washington tomorrow morning. A National salute was fired from the Fort at noon and a brilliant display of fire-works from the Fort and Soldier's Home was witnessed by about a thousand people.

AT RIBHMOND, VA.

RICHMOND, July 4.—The observance of the 4th here has been the most general since before the war. There was no public demonstration, but business was entirely suspended and almost sunday quiet prevailed. Numerous excursions left the city taking away thousands of people, while "can't get aways" enjoyed themselves quietly at home. The weather was clear and hot, the thermometer for several hours indienting ninety-eight degrees in the shade.

AT MEMPHIS, TENN.

MEMPHIS, July 4.- The day was generally observed. The streets were crowded with visitors, flags were flying and the city presented a gay appearance. At ten o'clock this morning the fire department paraded the principal streets and a grand pyrotechni display will be given to-night.

AT ST. LOUIS, MO.

Sr. Louis, July 4.—Independence day has been observed to the fullest extent, business except in a few retail shops was suspended and all public offices closed. The chief features of the day was the grand parade of the Eight Hour Laborers League, German and English sections of the Socialistic labor party and the Montgomery Guards which marched in uniform and fully armed. There were also several trades represented on wagons with mechanics working at their vocations and a num-ber of handsomely decorated vehicles filled with women and children in gay holiday atire. The procession was over half-hour passing a given point. After marching through several streets it started for Lindell Park where the day was spent in festivities. Perfect order prevailed.

AT MONTGOMERY, ALA. MONTGOMERY, July 4.—Four thousand people assembled at the Fair Grounds to-day. The procession of the ex-Confederate soldiers was the conspicuous feature of the day. The De claration of Independence was read by ex-Governor Watts. Rev. Father Ryan, the poet-priest, delivered an address which abounded in tributes to the wisdom and patriotism of the men of 1776 He especially claimed that the people of the South should ever cherish the principles for which their forefathers contended. General Joseph Wheeler and ex-Attorney-General Sanford made speeches. Many letters were also read, among them were letters from Jefferson Davis, General Hancock, General Hooker, General Beauregard, General G. W. Morgan and General McClellan. After the speaking there was an old-fashioned

Fourth of July barbecue. AT HARRISONBURG, VA. HARRISONBURG, July 4.—The largest and most enthusiastic celebration of the Fourth ever known, took place to-day, There was an immense outpouring of the military and citizens of the Shenandoah Valley from Harper's Ferry to Staunton. The town was ablaze with excitement. No accidents are reported.

DEVASTATION IN IOWA AND MIN-NESOTA.

Curious Appearance of the Storm Cloud---First like an Hour Glass, and then a Straight Pillar.

SIOUX CITY, Iowa, July 4 .- A tornado struck the Southeastern part of Elkhorn, D. T., at half-past 5 o'clock last evening, demolishing three dwellings and many barns, store houses, etc. Only one person was injured as far as known.

A special despatch to the Journal from Lemars, Plymouth Co., Iowa, says: "A terrible wind storm passed over the northern part of this county last evening destroying houses, barns, etc., ten miles northeast of here, Two young men named Kass, who saw the storm coming run into a barn for shelter when the wind struck the building with terrific force completely demol-ishing it and crushing them to death in the ruins. Parties who saw the storm from a distance say it was terrible to look at. It could be distinctly seen at Lemars. At first the storm cloud presented the appearance of an hour glass after which it assumed the shape of a straight column and then seemed to break into fragments and crift awav. MILWAUKEE, July 4.—Reports from over one hundred different points in Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin say the late storm did no damage to crops except some wheat that was blown down but is all coming up again.

LOSS OF LIFE IN MINNESOTA. St. Paul, July 4.-The storm last Wednesday night was the heaviest ever known in Minnesota, Five inches of rain fell here in fifteen hours, the greatest amount since the signal service office was established. Trains are delayed on all the railroads by wash-outs, and none arrived at or left the city until last night. The most serious damage is on the railroad near Red Wing, where the wash-out will stop travel fo a day or two. The storm extended all over this State and Northwestern Wisconsin, in which regions there was a great fall of rain and hail, accompanied by thunder and lightning, the details of which come in slowly. Great damage was done at Vasa, Goodhue county, Minn. Seven persons were killed and thirty injured by lightning and falling buildings, but no particulars have been received from there yet. Two persons were killed in Winnebago and Mountain Lake by lightning. Redwing reports $100,000 dam ge to property in that city. Every town in the Southern and Eastern portions of the State suffered heavily, but details are still wanting. At Marshall, hailstones as large as hen eggs fell, causing great destruc-tion to crops. At Menomonee, Wis.,

heard from. The telegraph lines cast-ward were down all day yesterday. A LATER ACCOUNT.

St. Paul, July 4.—The first complete account of the loss of life in Goodhue county by the storm of Wednesday night and yesterday morning reached here to-day. The storm assumed the character of a cyclone near Redwing, the point of the greatest violence being Vasa, a small village ten miles west of the Mississippi. A special dispatch to the Pioneer Press from Redwing says:

"In the town of Vasa the fury of the starm was of its height making fearful." storm was at its height making fearful havoe. It seemed to start four miles beyond Vasa and traveled in a southwesterly direction. Vasa church and the orphanage which is under the care of the church were completely destroyed. The orphanage contains twenty-four in-mates and out of this number three were killed outright and seventeen injured, it is thought fatally. The house of Erich Stevenson, clo e by was blown down and he was killed and his wife, seriously injured. G. H. Holme and wife an elderly couple, were killed, also a baby of Mr. and Mrs. Linseed and another party unknown, making nine persons in all killed and four more not expected to live. The number of wounded is thirty. The houses of all mentioned as killed were blown down and many other houses injured. The storm raged through Belle Creek, where it blew down the house of Anthony Pettel. At Warrenton on the Lake Shore three houses were torn down and a man and his wife and daughter were killed in one of them. At Maiden Rock twelve frame houses

The Teacher's Association -- Dr. Satchwell's Address, &c.

Correspondence of the News. CHAPEL HILL, July 4.—We are now in the midst of the meeting of the State Teacher's Association. Night before last we had a most scholarly production from Major H. Horner on "Language, the Instrument of Thought." Yesterday morning Professor Pegram, of Trinity College, and Professor W. C. Doub, of Louisburg Female College, delivered an able address. Miss Coe followed with a short address which was well received.

Last night the Convention was addressed by Dr. S. S. Satchwell, President of the State Board of Health. This gentleman is known as one of the most distinguished physicians of the State, who, with a generosity and patriotism characteristic of his profession, has, at the unanimous call of the State Medical Society, undertaken the duties of head of the State Board of Health; an office of responsibility and hard work, but with no pay.

Doctor after devoting a few remarks to the general subject of domes-tic sanitation, proceeded to the discussion of what was more especially his subject-"School Hygene." He urged the necessity of reform in those prime factors of individual and public he good air, good water, drainage, whole-some food and good cooking. He showed how the neglect of these sanitatary laws affects the health of the children and retards their mental progress. He discussed sanitary questions in that bold, able and practical manner in which distinguishes him, and delineated him in a masterly manner, the triumphs of sanitary progress, and the necessity of this Department as a coordinate branch of the State Government. His description of the injurious influences of unwholesome food and bad cooking made a deep impression, as did his striking portrayal of the ruinous effects in study and mental growth, produced by the miserable habit of crowding the mind with long lessons and confining the body for long weary hours in an uncomfortable position. He earnestly demanded reform in these matters. He advised that the number of hours devoted to study be shortened. He insisted that there must be a revolution in public sentiment on the subject of school hours and school lessons. The Doctor extelled his profession s well as the great cause of sanitary science and modern preventive medicine. He appealed to his audience to adopt means of prevention while it s not 100 late. The speaker showed how the average term of life had been lengthened and how some of the most formidable diseases were brought within the control of man. He spoke in severe condemnation of the fondness of people for salted meats, instead of fresh; for fatty bread; vegetables swimming in grease and demanded that the frying-pan should be abolished in favor of the gridiron.

The address was well received, the large audience listening with great attention.

No Senator sought recognition from the Chair, the clerks were silent in their seats and everybody satidly waiting for the clock to mark the hour of dissolution. The Senate was very thin n number, not half of the seats being occupied. Senator Conkling sat in his seat, gazing amiably at the ladies' gallery, hat in hand. Behind him sat big Senator Davis, cracking jokes with Carpenter, who sat in the aisle next to Conkling, laughing good naturedly. Don Cameron talked with Zach Chandler, and both seemed interested. Logan and Ingalls played with Toby, the lit-tle page from North Carolina. On the Democratic side Maxey sat on his backbone, with his feet on his desk. THE THREE EVENTS.

THE FOURTH IN WINSTON, HEN-DERSONVILLE AND LOUISBURG. Twenty Thousand People at Win. ston-Eight Thousand at each of the other two.

Special to the News.

SALEM, N. C., July 4. - The celebration of the Fourth of July has been for the past few years quite a gala day in our two towns, and many people from all parts of the rural districts came in to enjoy the same. Extra efforts were, however, made this year to surpass all previous celebrations, and nothing was left undone within the power of the managers to make a display that would never be forgotten.

As early in the week as Monday vis itors began to arrive from a distance to secure desirable places of entertainment during the week, and by Thursday evening quite a number were present, despite the warm and dusty weather. FRIDAY, THE FOURTH, was ushered in bright and beautiful. The streets were crowded early with visitors from all parts of the country and at early hour the town was literally alive with people. The observance of the day was as follows: A salute of thirteen guns was fired at 4 o'clock by Captain General A. Bedel, Chief Vulcan and cannonier, of Wins-

Ringing of bells from 5:30 to 5:54 o'clock, which from our eight church towers and factories with the court nouse, makes quite a chime.

Prayer in the different churches at At 8 o'clock a procession was formed tn the Public Square in Salem in the following order:

Salem Cornet Band. Winston Light Infantry. Durham Light Infantry.

Danville Grays. Columbus Discovering America, consisting of boys in proper costumes in a ship representing the Santa Maria, which was very natural and well gotten up. Presentation of first tobacco by Sir Walter Raleigh.

Captain John Smith and Pocahontas. William Penn's treaty with the Indians.
Continental Congress (boys costumed as Continentals).

ladies.

Carriage containing the president of the day, reader and orator. The procession, under the control of the chief marshal and his aids, marched up Main street to the upper part of Winston, and from thence back to the

On arriving at the square the President announced the following order of exercises: Reading the National Declar-ation of Independence from the committee representing Congress Hall

FANTASTICS PARADED THE STREETS, both trains presenting the most ludi crous grotesques figures that the imagination can picture or fancy devise. The parade seemed to amuse the immense crowd more than the historical and oratorical part of the day's doings.

At night the square was beautifully illuminated, and at half past eight o'clock the Mecklenburg Declaration of Independence was read by Mr. H. E. Fries

The address by Eugene Gray, Esq., followed, then doxology was sung and benediction pronounced by Rev. J. T. Zorn, of the Moravian church.

THE OLD SOLDIERS formed on Main street, opposite the square in Salem. At the conclusion of the morning exercises, under the direc-tion of Mr. M. W. Norfleet, acting President of the Survivors Associa ation, the column, numbering six hundred from different States, some having come over two hundred miles, moved up Main street to the court house in Winston, with the Confederate fife and drum playing; from thence to the reservation where six tables fifty feet long, had been prepared in a beauful grove; 1,200 pounds of beef and mutton had been barbecued, 40 hams had been boiled, 1,200 pounds of bread baked. All kinds of vegetables, cakes and pies, with plenty of ice water etc., were in waiting. The old veterans after the fatigue of the morning entered the business with a vim, and got away with the refreshments, as none but an old soldier knows how. The expected dignitaries who were to make speeches, did not arrive, greatly to the disappointment of the immense throng. C. B. Watson, Esq., and Dr. Bahnson of Salem, were chief managers in the work, and to their energy and vim much of the honor is due. This celebration surpasses in number of people, judicious arrangement and well gotten up and happy conception of characters any thing that has ever been in North Carolina before. The music by the band was splendid; the military display magnificent; historical repre sentations so life-like as to make one feel the actual event was transpiring. THE ORATION

by Mr. Glenn was well delivered and attentively listened to, being full of deep thought, happy illustration, historical research and patriotic pathos. The reading of the Declarations by the reader was well done, and the address by Mr. Gray was just what we expected from man-perfectly splendid.

surpassed even themselves in quaint, comic, and ridiculous dress and ludi-crous appearance, reminding us of Mardi Gras in New-Orleans. The masses of living humanity moved forward and backward with a celerity that would seem incredible. They came from mountain, hill top, valley, glen and plain, and from beyond the Blue Ridge and adjoining counties of Virginia and Tennessee, black and white, male and female, old and young, large and small, they came. The number is estimated at twenty thousand.

HENDERSONVILLE, July 4 - At 3:30 p. m. on Friday the 4th, we started to Hendersonville to participate in the celebration of the completion of the Spartanburg, Union & Catawba R. R. to that point. We were in charge of our clever friend and superior R. R. man, Col. A. B. Andrews, superintendent of the N. C. R. R., who exerted every effort to make us comfortable and pass our time pleasantly and by the way succeeded admirably. Our party consisted of the following gentlemen trom Raleigh: Gov. Jarvis Judge D. G. Fowle, Col. Andrews and Col. F. H. Cameron of the Governor's staff. Col. W. E. Anderson, His Honor Judge Eure, Maj. Gilliam and Hon. J. M. Moring, Speaker of the House of Representative of N. C. Messrs. M. T. Leach, J. M. Dorrance, Ed. H. Lee, R.

H. Jones, F. A. Olds and Fab Busbee. We arrived in Greensboro on time and partook of a very substantial supper, after which and upon the arrival of the train from Richmond we changed of the train from Richmond we changed our quarters to an elegant drawing room car, which by Col. Andrews' previous arrangement we were enabled to re-tain for the remainder of the trip. About the time that we were leaving Greensboro it was announced that our party had been augmentedly the following well known gentlemen of that place, who had been invited to 'oin Colonel Staples, Mr. Duffy, editor Greenboro Patriot, Marshal, Douglas and Mr. Frank Caldwell; further on our Mr. Frank Caldwell; further on our route we were joined at Concord by Colonel Paul B. Means, and at Lexington by General J. M. Leach. But at Greens-

R. had in charge a party of distinguished Virginians, among them General M. C. Butler, Senator from South Carolina, and invited us all to go in and make their acquaintance, and were presented to the following well known gentle-man, General M. C. Butler, Senator from South Carolina, Colonel M. R. Talcott General Superintent R. & D. R. R., Mr. A. Y. Stone, Vice President R. & D. R. R., Major E. T. D. Blankenship of the Old Dominion Iron and Nail Works, Major R. V. Gains, a large stockholder of the Company, and last the venerable and distinguished James D. Cowarden, for many years the editor of the Richmond Dispatch and has of the allest mond Dispatch, and one of the ablest newspaper men in this country. After spending an hour or so in social conversee with our new made acquaintances we retired to our sleepers and waking next morning, found our car on the side-track of the Richmond and Atlanta Air-Line R. A QUIET, NICE LOOKING PLACE of short 4,000 inhabitants where we breakfasted and about 11 o'clock started to Hendersonville via. the Spartanburg, Union & Columbia R. Jones, of the Charlotte Observer, Judge Shipp, Capt. S. B. Alexander, Colonel David A. Jenkins, Colonel Bryce, Mr. Oats, Mr. Springs and a number of others whose names we did not learn, Our road lay directly through the Blue Ridge, over which we passed, making the time from Spartanburg to Hendersonville in about three hours, having a distance of about fifty miles to climb the mountains-in some places up a grade of two hundred feet to the mile. Along the ascent we beheld some beautiful scenery, at times finding ourselves overlooking the tops of some of the tallest trees, then again CRAWLING ALONG THE BASE of some lofty lake rounding down upon us would so obscure the view as to enable us to see only the large mountains in our immediate front. Then we beheld in the distance those beautiful peaks of the thermal belt where vegetation changes its hue and renders by contrast the scenery so lavishly decked by the hand of nature. Reaching Hendersonville at 11 o'clock, we found an immense concourse of people awaiting our arrival, and amidst the playing of the brass bands and shouting of the crowd assembled, our party disembarked and from the porch of the depot were welcomed in a neat little speech by Mr. Hamilton G. Evarts, of Hendersonville. The . response of Colonel McAden, elicited rounds of applause from the assembled multitude. Then the party was invited to adjourn to the spacious grove where stands were erected for the speakers and music, and tables groaned beneath the

Wishing them the consummation of their most cherished hopes he closed by presenting Governor Simpson, of South Carolina, who by his graceful bearing and fine oratory soon captivated his audience and demanded their rapt attention for about three-fourths of an hour, telling them "in a short time he hoped to see the iron horse as in the early morn he shook from his mane the dews of the East, pressing onward through the mountains of North Carolina ere the sun hides itself beneath the western horizon, bathe its fetlocks in the waters has been a succession of ovations. The centennial will live a hundred years in the memories of the inhabitants of this place. The proceedings were initiated yesterday, and Senator Vance arrived last night, and is the guest of Mr. C. M. Cooke. The Declaration was read by Mr.E.G. Brown, formerly of Raleigh, in the town park, which was beautifully lighted up. The marshal service was well managed by Mr. J. B. Clifton, and order reigned supreme. The choir sang an anthem before Mr. Brown began, and the music by the Raleigh band added much to the enjoyment of the occasion. There were some speeches and the Third passed off a fitting pre-lude to the Fourth, CENTENNIAL DAY. The weather was fair and the morning air was cool and bracing. The crowds of ingathering people from all points of the compass came surging in up to a late hour, and by 11 a. m. it was estimated that from 6,000 to 8,000 people were in Louisburg. Almost every available spot was occupied. The procession formed at 9 a. m.; the leading features of which were ninety-four mounted horsemen representing the ninety-four counties of the State, and the centennial choir composed of thirteen beautifully dressed young ladies representing the thirteen States of the Colony. These were followed by ten little girls, costumed as the ten town-ships of Frank'in. The line was brought up to the grounds and the introductory address made by Mr. G. S. Baker, who closed by introducing the historical orator, Mr. J. J. Mitchell, who gave a graphic account of old Franklin county. Mr. Cook then made a speech, and was followed by Mr. Manning who represented Governor Jarvis, who had gone to Hendersonville to show that this State was polite and courteous.

The grove was literally packed with people, and when Mr. Manning concluded his remarks a grand rush was made for dinner. The crowd had been standing a long time, and their minds had dwelt on the feast of reason until they were

The speech of Senator Vance, as usual, was one of the features of the occs-sion, and was applauded with all the voice left in the crowd. The grand centennial ball was a briliant success. There were about fifty costumes of the olden time whirling in the mazy dance, Mr. E. J. Jones taking the character of George Washington. There has been such a round of pleasure and so many shifting scenes passing in kaleidoscopic succession that hardly one impression is made on the mind before another succeeds. The celebration has been well conceived and finely carried out.

I have just been looking over the laws passed by the last Legislature; and if the kind of legislation shall continue which was adopted by the last Legisla-ture, a man will hardly be able to go from one county to another, or from one neighborhood to another without meet ing with a new set of laws. WRITING about the Louisburg Cenennial a Raleigh correspondent of the Philadelphia Times observes: No State of all the thirty-eight is now or ever has been more thoroughly American than North Carolina, and her people have been always profoundly loyal to the maxims of the founders of our twofold governmental polity. During the late civil war—which was after all, a conflict between two loyalties and in which either side was actuated by an earnest patriotism on the one hand toward the State, on the other toward the Nation-the great majority of the North Carolinians, while yielding their first allegiance to the State, nevertheless preserved a regret-ful, lingering love for the great Republic, in whose foundation and earlier glories they had so large an historic share and to which they steadily cherished the hope of an honorable ultimate return. This is history, and it cannot be blotted out.

Advice to a Young Man. Burlington Hawkeye.

Remember son, that the world is older than you are by several years; that for thousands of years it has been so full of smarter and better young men than yourself! that their feet stuck out of the dormer-windows; that when they died the old globe went whirling on, and not one man in ten million went to the funeral or even heard of the death. Be as smart as you can, of course. Know as much as you can without blowing the packing out of your cylinderhead; shed the light of your wisdom abroad in the world, but don't dazzle people with it. And don't imagine a thing is so simply because you say it is. Don't be too sorry for your father because he knows so much less than you do; remember the reply of Dr. Wayland to the student at Brown University, who said it was an easy thing to make proverbs such as Solomon wrote. "Make a few," tersely replied the old man. And we never heard that the young man made any. Not more than two or three, anyhow. The world has great need of young men, but no greater need than the young men have of it. Your clothes fit you better than your father's fit him: they cost more money; they are more stylish; your moustache is neater; the cut of your hair is better, and you are prettier-oh, far prettier than But, young man, the old gentleman gets the biggest salary, and his homely, scrambling signature on the business end of a check will drain more money out of the bank in five minutes than you could get out with a ream of paper A British colonial Governor can proton to crops. THE SAD FATE OF FOUR YOUNG LADIES.

Captain Oaksmith and six Children are Capsised between Fort Macon and Beaufort.

Special Telegram to the Ne vs.

MOREHEAD CITY, July 5 .- A very sad accident occurred here yesterday afternoon about 4 o'clock. Captain Appleton Oaksmith, with his six children and one employee, while sailing from Fort Macon to Beaufort in a very small boat were capsised about midway between the Fort and Beaufort, resulting in the loss of his four daughters, while himself and employee and other two children caught in the rigging, narrowly escaping from the same terrible fate. The remains of but three of the drowned have been recovered, though diligent search has been made for the remaining one. All efforts as vet have been unsuccessful. The bodies of the three young ladies were carried to the Ocean View Hotel, Beaufort, and every possible means were employed to resuscitate them. This is the most shocking accident that has occurred here in nany years. Captain Oaksmith was a prominent member of the Legislature several years ago, and is a poet of fine reputa-

Peace Institute. It seems superfluent to recommend to the public in the South, a school controlled by Mr. Burwell, his son, and their associates. Time has fully indorsed their claims to be considered as among the foremost as teachers and disciplinarians. The spacious building occupied by the Messrs. Burwell, with its complete appointments, insures health and comfort. The supervision exercised over the pupils is as near the wholesome restraint of home as it is possible for a boarding school to attain. It is doubtful whether any school in the South for young ladies presents greater inducements, and affords better facilities for the culture and education of our girls than Peace Institute. No institution of the kind can claim supeperiority, either in appointments, fa-

UNITED STATES MARSHALS. Notwithstanding the failure of the Marshals' fee bill all legitimate services rendered by regular Marshals will be paid. There was no dispute between the President and Congress as to the proper Judicial duties of the Marshals. All that was desired for such services was freely proffered by Congress.

The responsibility for the failure of the appropriation rests on the Presidentand the partisan revolutionists who inspired him to hinder legislative appropriations because money could not be had for the most arbitrary and violent partisan efforts. The regular marshals, like the army officers two years ago, when the Republican Senate refused to pass the Democratic House army appropriation, are certain to get their pay, and their salaries can be advanced with safety; but Congress has given notice to the country that no Deputy Marshals or Supervisors will be paid for partisan duties, and the country will heartily sustain Congress in adhering to its position with inflexible determination.

SINCE the 1st of January of this year forty insurance companies in this country have discontinued business, reinsured or merged into other companies or made an absolute failure. There are also many companies so crippled as to be practically worthless, but whose real condition will not be known until a dissolution takes place. The Cincinnati Enquirer, in commenting on these facts, says: "There is an entire sermon in this exhibit which undercutters and twenty percenters might apply with exceeding profit. Among the departed are many which less than a year ago would have scouted at the idea of failure or reinsurance. Business was coming in at a fair rate. and the volume of premiums was pleasant to the eye; but with the business came the losses. and the ratio was at once upset. After the expense account was deducted there was nothing from which to pay the losses, and failure or reinsurance was their only alternative." Reckless competition is the rock upon which these corporations have split.

THE Maine Democracy is a lively corpse. Hear!

.. Polk, State Commissioner of Agriculture, in which occurs this startling statement. Read and shudder: "I have an official report of bacon flour, etc., delivered in your town, (Tarboro')—shipped into the State—for each of the years 1876, '77 and '78. In 1856, of meat, there were 1,193,172 lbs., in 1877, 1,429, 649 lbs., in 1878, 885, 314 lbs., total, 3,508,135 lbs. Of flour ir 1876, 746,627 lbs., in 1877, 662929 lbs., in 1878, 660,670, total, 10, 562 barrels. Putting the meat at 12 cts, per pound and the flour at $10 per barrel, shows that the people paid for the Tarboro delivery in these two articles, during the three years $526,596.20. Add to this hay, corn and guano and you have a sum that is enormous. For the meat and flour alone, with cotton at $40 per bale, it took 14,164 bales to pay for it.' Such figures as these are sufficient to put the people to thinking—to show them the suicidal fallacy of placing their all on cotton, their whole fortunes on the cast of a single die. There is no excuse for an agricultural people buying their bread, hay, mules, meat, flour, etc., in a distant market. It is bad enough to raise the cotton and then be compelled to buy your clothing at the North. Every debtor who has endeavored to free him self from his obligations by raising cotton, has only sunk deeper in the mire. We don't advise the abandonment of cotton altogether, but to raise your home supplies first and then have your cotton money clear. We trust our farmer readers will read over and ponder the figures we get from Col. Polk and then say whether so much money shall be sent out of the county. For Tarboro people to be compelled to eat Richmond meal to be compelled to eat Richmond meal is a disgrace to the community.

THE DEMOCRATS PATRIOTICALLY APPEAL TO THE PEOPLE

Congressional Record, Friday, June 27: The House being in ommittee of the Whole and having under consideration the bill (H. R. 23%) making appropriation to pay the fees of United States marshals and their general deputies—

Mr. Hurd said:

MR. CHAIRMAN: A session of unusual excitement appears to be drawing to a close. Questions of the greatest interest to the people of the United States have been from the first day until now the subject of discussion, and it seems a proper thing at its termination to inquire into the result of it, and inquire whether or not the action of the majority of this House meets with the approval of the American people.

My colleague from Ohio (Mr. Garfield) who has just taken his seat has seen fit, in answer to the positions which have been maintained by the Democratic party in the progress of the argument, to enter upon a disquisition as to the nature of the Federal Government and the relations of the States to that Government under the constitution which they created. Never in all my studies of the political history of this country, never in all my knowledge of the political debates which have taken place in the Congress of the United States have I heard such views of consolidation advanced as have been suggested to-day by that gentleman.

He advanced the extraordinary proposition that the Union preceded the States, when the seventh article of the Constitution declares: The ratification of the conventions of nine States shall be sufficient for the establishment of this Constitution between the States so ratifying the same. (Applause on the Democratic side of the House.) But in order that all doubt might be

The people of the United States constitute one nation, under one government, and this government within the scope of the powers with which it is invested is supreme. On the other hand the people of each State compose State having its own government, and endowed with all the functions essential to separate and independent existence. The States disunited might continue to Without the States in union there could be no such political body as the United States.

But, Mr. Chairman, for the purpose of the present discussion it is not neces-sary to enter into an elaborate consideration of the doctrine of State rights or the powers of the Federal Government. It is sufficient for the bill now under consideration that we should inquire as to whether it is within the scope and the powers of the Federal Government to pass laws to interfere with elections in the States, only so far as this ques-tion is involved do I propose to discuss the doctrine of State rights at all.

At the beginning of this session of Congress the Democratic party declared three propositions. We insisted that the Army should be kept away from the polls: that the test oath should be repealed, and that laws should be enacted for the impartial drawing of jurors; and that the Federal Government should not exercise authority over elections held within the States. insisted and maintained that because of and by virtue of the constitutional provision that the House of Representatives alone shall originate money bills the representatives of the people had the right to insist that the grievances of which they complained should be remedied before appropriations should be made for the support of the Government. In the discussion which has continued for three months, one of the most earnest and able that has ever occurred in an American Congress, the Democratic party has maintained these propositions. It is not necessary to enter into the details of the argument; it is sufficient for my purose to briefly recapitulate them. We said that the measures to which we objected were unconstitutional; we said that there was no such person as a voter of the United States as such; tha every man who had a right to vote had because of State authority and under State laws and that therefore the Federal Government, not creating the voter, had no power to interfere with him in the exercise of his rights of franchise. We insist that under the laws, as they now stand, there is no such thing as a national election; that under the pro-visions of the Constitution in order that there should be a national election it was fundamental that Congress should fix the places, times, and manner of holding such election. In that event there might be a national election, but that is not this case, for in every instance the times, places, and manner of holding elections are fixed by the constitution and the laws of the States, except in a single instance as to the time. States having exercised power upon the subject, there is no occasion for the exercise of power by the Uni-ted States, and to say that the United States and each State at the same time possess the power of fixing the time, place and manner of holding the elections is to say that two sovereignties possess the power to do the same thing at the same time on the same subject-matter, which is itself an absurdity. We maintain as to the Army that it being a creature of Congress it has no power to be within the limits of the sovereign States except as the Constitution of the United States provides, and then only for the purpose of suppressing domestic insurrection or repelling the armed enemies of the United States, and then only at the request of the Legislature thereof, or the Executive of the State if the Legislature be

More than that. We have referred to decisions of the Supreme Court of the United States approving all these propositions and declaring that the voters of the State and that the Federal Government has nothing to do with them. To these decisions gentlemen on the other side, with one or two exceptions, have absolutely refrained in this debate from referring. In addition to that we urged the argument that the laws we sought to repeal enabled the supervisors to come into the State and interfere with State elections for the selection of State officers, we also referred to the fact in the State of New York that other States the greatest outrages had been committed by the arrest of citizens without warrant by officers who had not seen them commit any offense against the laws and who upon bare suspicion that an offense was intended, had arrested them. We showed from experience how in the South justice had been made a farce; that jurors were drawn in the interests of partisanship and that cases were de-cided in the interests of partisanship, and that the courts had absolutely failed to administer justice to the peo-ple in that great section. We referred to the city of New York, where on an election day more than five thousand

American citizens were imprisoned by the authority of supervisors of election and afterward discharged by a judge of the United States court who decided that there was no authority to arrest and that they had been guilty of no crime. More than that, we referred in our argument to the great doctrine civil liberty and maintained that the measures we sought to repeal were inimical to freedom, un-American in spirit, and in the end would prove subversive of free government. No more manly, no more dignified, no more logical debate so far as the Democratic side of this House is concerned was ever conducted on this floor; but in what way were our arguments treated by gentlemen on the other side of the House? With the excep tion of half a dozen speeches the pretended answers to our arguments might as well have been made on any either subject as upon the bill now before the House for consideration. When we said that these measures were vio-lative of the Constitution of the United States Republican orators replied that on this side of the House the majority were Confederate brigadiers who had attempted to overthrow the Constitution of the United States. When we referred to the fact of the

zens, they replied by citing the out-rages committed at Andersonville and other prisons in the South during the war, and when we urged that the powers of the Army should be so limited and qualified that it might not be used to overthrow the liberties of the people, they said, your side was whipped by that Army, and therefore you are opposed to it. Never in all my knowledge has a debate been so honestly conducted as this has been upon our side of the House; never have arguments been more unfair met than have our argument by gentlemen on the other side. There are honorable exceptions, of course It would be invidious to date them, but 1 will venture to mention the names of two, and I refer to the distinguished centleman from Connecticut (Mr. Hawley) and the gentleman from New Jersey (Mr. Robeson). The this debate bills have been passed and (Mr. Robeson). As the result of sent to the President of the United States and have been vetoed. The veto power was designed by the Constituion as a power to prevent unconstitual legislation or hasty or ill-considered legislation or to enable the executive to protect itself against encroachments from other branches of the Government. I defy any gentleman to point me to any argument in the debate upon the adoption of the Constitution which did not give in favor of this provision one or the other of these reasons.

And in the history of this Government, from the day of its foundation antil now, the veto power was never before exercised to prevent the repeal of a law or to prevent the enactment of a general appropriation bill. Certainly never before was the veto power exercised to practically take away from one of the two Houses of Congress a power which is conferred upon it separately by the provisions of the Constitution tself. The power to originate bills of revenue is a power which, if the President interferes with it as he has done by his veto, in this case he can absolutely take away from us.

What reasons have been urged for these extraordinary vetoes? Chiefly that the bills we sought to pass tool away from the executive authority the power to enforce the law. Because we would not let him use the Army on election day to keep the peace at the polls he said we took away from him the power to enforce the laws. Sir, the Army is the creature of Congress. The Constitution declares that the Congress may raise an army, The Constitution declares that appropriations for the Army shall not last longer than two years. The Constitution declares that Congress may make rules and regulations for the government of the Army; rules and regulations, "rules" coming first "regulations" afterward. Therefore the Army is absolutely the creature of Congress. Whether it shall be used to execute the laws or not is for Congress to say and not for the President. (Applause on the Democratic side.) He must take the army as we give it to him, for the purposes we being the power to create it. Strange to say, the President and his advisers and the gentlemen on the other side of the House seem to have lost sight of the constitutional provision which gives the President the power to execute the laws. The language of that instrument is that the President of the United States may call upon the militia of the several States to execute the laws. There is the power given to him for the execution of the laws; not the Army, unless Congress says so, but the militia of the States. ecause the Constitution so provides.

Never for an instant did our bills interfere with the power of the President over the militia of the States, but only over the army-this creature of ours. The President has the militia of the States from one end of the United States to the other to aid him in executing the laws on election day or at any other ime, at the polls or anywhere else. What is the result now after the vetoes? Some gentlemen have said that the Democratic party has backed down has surrendered. Sir, when we entered upon this fight we did not expect to gain the victory in a day. When power has for twenty years been intrenching behind all possible legislation, we cannot dislodge it in a moment. We entered upon this contest knowing that many a battle must be fought, many a victory be gained, before the ultimate triumph could be achieved. In the Forty-fifth Congress we said to the President, your Army-our Army I mean—our Army shall not be used a posse comitatus. In the Forty sixth Congress we have said our Army shall not be used as a part of the police force. And before the Forty-sixth Congress shall have closed its term I say to gentlemen that we will have taken from the statute-book every law which proposes to use this creature of ours at the polls to intimidate American citizens in the exercise of their highest prerogative. [Great applause on the Democratic side. I would have gentlemen on the other side and the country remember that there has been no surrender of the principle with which we began this contest. We claim that the people, by virtue of their power to originate ap-propriation bills, can secure redress of their grievances by stopping the sup-plies for the support of the Government, either of the President of of any other branch of the Government, unless our views on the subjects to which the appropriations relate are carried out. I say to gentlemen on the other side and to the country that so long as the Democratic party is in a majority in this House it will never surrender that grand, healthful power which more than any other made England a free nation, and which was put into our Con-stitution in order that the legislative authority might have a wholesome method of controlling executive

Mr. Chairman, this extra session has made up the issue between the two par-The Democratic party declare that the Army shall be kept from the polls; that juries shall be impartially drawn; that the test oath shall be repealed, and that the Federal authority shall not interfere in elections within the States. Upon that question the Republican party takes issue with us Confidently appealing only to the patriotism of the country, the Democratic party goes into this contest. Never in all the history of this land have more important questions been submitted to the American people for their determination. They relate to the pure administration of justice; they concern the gravest ques-tions of constitutional law; they affect the fundamental principles of civil liberty. Every man who runs for any office in any State and every citizen who goes to the polls to deposit his ballot is interested. The whole method of that if upon this issue party shall be successful, then all power over elections in States would be drawn to the central government. The States would lose their places in federative system, and whether the Army shall be used at the polls or not would be a question not of right and of constitutional law but of executive discretion. Such a result means the end of the Republic and the uplifting of the empire. Can there be any doubt as to a controversy like this? In Russia where absolute despotism silences in-dividual opinion, it might be doubtful. In Germany where imperial power sustains itself by an immense standing army, it might bedoubt:ul. In France where the people under monarchs and emperors for age: have slumbered, it might be doubtful. But here in free America, with the traditions of our English ancestors, and with the sacrifices and triumphs of our American forefathers in behalf of civil liberty, it cannot be doubtful. [Applause.] Shall civil liberty perish upon its own thresh-hold and by its own fireside? Shall the beacon-light which has shown from our shores for the encouragement of struggling freemen everywhere flicker in its socket and go out even as they are gazing upon it? Shall the sun of free government in this continent ere it reaches the meridian sink into night? Shall the shadow and the cloud of the Army darken our free fields and free rivers and free lakes and free prairies, and pollute the air so that a freeman can not breathe it? The century of triumph just ended protests; the bright prospects of our future protest; the hopes of the world protest; and what is practically of more value, the Democratic party with its majority of half a million of American people, protests.

Gentlemen the contest will soon be Ay, it has already begun. I hear the whispering of American inquiry: I hear the matterings of Anglo-Saxon resolve. I hear the tread of the legions torming, with the banner of civil lib erty above them. The contest has already begun; and God give victory to freedom and the right! [Loud applause.]

Pray to God at the beginning of all thy works, that so thou mayest bring them all to a good ending. The most terrific storm of real woe in a man's heart rarely flings its froth and foam as high as his lips. The physically blind feel their infirmity; but what shall we say of the morally blind? What I admire in Columbus is not his having discovered a world, but his having gone to search for it on the faith

We are hanging up pictures every day about the chamber walls of our hearts that we shall have to look at when we sit in the shadows.

The mind has a certain vegetative power, which can not be wholly idle. If it is not laid out and cultivated into beautiful garden, it will of itself shoot up weeds or flowers.

Bless me in this life with but peace of my conscience, command of my affections, the love of God and my dearest friends, and I shall be happy enough to pity Cæsar. I very often think with sweetness and longings and pantings of soul, of being a little child, taking hold of Christ, to be led by him through the wilderness of this world. Rousseau's praises of the Scriptures remind us of the high encomiums bestowed by Balaam on the talernacles of Religion in its deepest form is always sacrifice; and the necessity of offering something to God is a peculiar characteristic of grateful love. But that sacrifice only can be well-pleasing to him, which is not only well-meant, but is besides, presented according to his will and in agreement with his design. I have found nothing yet which requires more courage and independence than to rise even a little but decidedly above the par of the religious world around us. Surely, the way in which we commonly go on is not the way of self-denial and sacrifice and crossbearing which the New Testament talks

Courage.-What we want in our daily exposures to temptation, what the father or brother wants in his business. what the mother or daughter wants a home, what the school-boy or schoolgirl needs in the associations of the class-room or the play-ground, what we all want chiefly is Christian courage the courage of our convictions, the courage of high calling, readiness to suffer anything, all things, and even to die rather than sin and bring reproach on

How Many Were There? Henry, upon being asked how many boys were in his Sabbath School class last Sabbath? replied: "If you multi-ply the number of Jacob's sons by the number of times which the Israelites compassed Jericho, and add to the product the number of measures of barley which Boaz gave Ruth; divide this by the number of Haman's sons, subtract thd number of each kind of clean beasts that went into the ark; multiply by the number of men who went Elijah after he was taken to heaven; subtract from this Joseph's age at the time when he stood before Pharoah; add the number of stones in David's scrip when he killed Goliath; subtract the number of furlongs that Bethany was distant from Jerusalem; divide by the number of anchors cast out at the time of Paul's shipwreck; subtract the number of people saved in the Ark, and the remainder will be the number of boys in the class." How many were ADVANCE.

Mixed Marriages.

Speaking of marriages between those who profess religion and those who profess religion and those who profess none at all, the Illustrated Christian Weekly is of opinion that there is something in this matter that claims the special attention of young people. The formation of the conjugal relationship is all important for the happiness of this life, and it bears with decisive effect on the prospects of the next. families thus constituted, the Weekly continues, there can be little society, because there is little mutual confidence. There are few courses in which the heads of the family can walk together, for with different views of duw and responsibility there are few in which they can agree, and in such households and homes how can there be piety? If the husband is the irreligious one, there is no family altar, and there can be no religious conversation, for there is no oneness of mind. Too often in such cases, even by the Christian, the Bible, the Sabbath, the sacrament, the communion of saints are forgotten, and the soul relapses into indif-

See how soft and gentle and dreamlike the clouds appear since June set in. Their tints are more beautiful than ever, and instead of hurrying across the sky like warlike hosts rushing to battle, see how softly they float on the bosom of the caressing ether, like snow-white barks from the sea of heaven. Surely our Father's house, and the deep, calu sea of His love cannot be far beyond, What an ocean of joy is there, separated from us by so thin a veil. And there is a June-like robe o'er all the hills and vales, and the voice of June is in the song of brook and rivulet and bird. Lovely all,

THOUGHTS AND SENTIMENTS FOR THE SABBATH DAY.

Another Translation of "Dies Irre"... Searching Out God--"A Comparison," by Bishop Ryan.

DIES IR.E. The following translation of the Latn hymn "Dies Iræ" was made by the late General Dix, soon after the out-break of the war, while encamped on Southern soil:

Searching Out God.

George S. Merriam in Christian Register. A steady fidelity, a passionate aspiration; toward the highest,—that is the characteristic of Jesus; that is the characteristic of true religion. We are troubled sometimes by the question whether "the highest" is simply an ideal of character, fashioned by the mind and having substantial reality only as we ourselves grow into it; or whether this ideal is also the image, the truest representation we can receive, of a being who does really govern the universe, who responds to our affections and destines us for highest good. This latter is what those are anxious to maintain who insist on the personality of God. No one, I think, can fail to sympathize with this yearning to find a substantial embodiment of the highest good we can conceive, But the hesitation in others to affirm the personality of God is also largely due to a sentiment which we must respect; a consciousness, born of unshrinking desire for truth and of true humility, that the secret inner force of the universe immeasurably transcends our knowl-

Must one, then hold in suspense the main current of one's life until the mighty doubt is settled? Must moral energy and highest joy and peace be impossible in any full measure until the problem is solved?-the problem Israel. It is no unusual thing for men of which we may say now as men said in the days of Job: "Canst thou by searching find out God! Canst thou find out the Almighty to perfection? It is as high as heaven; what canst thou lo? deeper than hell; what canst thou

I think we must come to recognize that our deepest life goes on by processes which we but very dimly understand. In our most vital moments, the soul lays hold on realities which we are powerless to explain. And these redities, as we apprehend them when we are most strenuously faithful to right, when we most closely conform to that moral law and that principle of love which we are sure are for us, the true law and the true principle—the reali-ties which through such discipline we come to apprehend at times as intensely real, yet can hardly interpret or name, do irresistibly inspire in us a trust and hope greater than words can contain. When our lives are truest and best, we become courageous and serene. It is when love is perfect that it easts out fear. We know that these things are so, even when we can hardly give a why and wherefore, any more than the trees can tell why they become green in spring.

The question of a Providence ruling all things for good strikes with its diffi-culties the child's mind in its earliest activity, and strikes with the same difficulties in unabated force the mind of the maturest thinker. The problem in its intellectual form seems hopeless. But to countless hearts there has come this experience; that under a great loss in suffering which for a time has seemed inexplicable and unbearable, the soul finds somehow strength to accept its lot, not in help, ess submission to the inevitable, but in a kind of willing acquiescence. It feels something which s best expressed by "Thy will be done." And following upon that acquiescence, out of some unsounded depth there rises a consciousness that all is well. A Comparison.

Extract from a sermon by the Rt Rev. Bishop Ryan, of St. Louis. I will confess to you that the majesty ration, as the purity of the gospel has its influence on my heart. Peruse the works of our philosophers, with all their pomp of diction, how mean, how contemptible are they compared with the Scriptures. Is it possible that a book, at once so simple and so sublime. should be merely the work of man? 1s it possible that the sacred personage whose history it contains should be himself a mere man? Do we find that he assumed the tone of an enthusiast or ambitious sectary? What sweetness, what purity in his manner! What an affecting gracefulness in his instruc-tions! What sublimity in his maxims! What profound wisdom in discourses What presence of mind, what subtlety, what fitness in his replies! How great the command over his passions! Where is the man, where the philosopher, who could so live and so die, without weakness and without ostentation? When Plato describes his imaginary righteous man, loaded with the punishments of his guilt, yet meriting the highest re wards of virtue, he describes the character of Jesus Christ; the resembla so striking that art the church fathers perceived it. What prepossession, what blindness must it be to compare the son of Sophroniscus to the son of Mary! Socrates, dying without pain or ignomi ny, easily supported his character to the last; and if this easy death had not crowned his life, it might have been doubted whether Socrates, with all his wisdom, was anything more than mere sophist. He invented, it is said. the theory of ethics. Others, however had before put them in practice. He had only to say, therefore, what they had done, and to reduce their examples to precepts. Aristides had been just before Socrates defined justice, Le before Socrates declared patriotism to before Socrates declared patriotism to be a duty. The Spartans were a sober people before Socrates recommended sobriety. Before he had even defined virtue, Greece abounded in virtuous men. But where could Jesus learn, among his contemporaries, that pure and sublime morality of which he has given us both precept and example? The greatest wisdom was made known among the most bigoted fanaticism, and the simplicity of the most heroic virtues did honor to the vilest people on earth. The death of Socrates, peaceful. ly philosophizing among friends, apars the most agreeable that one coul pears the most agreed wish. That of Jesus, expiring in ago nies, abused, insulted and accused by a nies, abused, insulted and accused by a nies, abused in the most horrible than whole nation, is the most horrible th one could fear. Socrates, indeed, receiving the cup of poison, blessed t weeping executioner who administered it; but Jesus, amid excruciating tor tures, prayed for his merciless tormen-ters. Yes, if the life and death of Socrates were those of a sage, the life and death of Jesus Christ are those of a God Shall we suppose the evangelical history a mere fiction? On the contrary, the history of Socrates, which no one presumes to doubt, is not so well attest. ed as that of Jesus Christ.

A Singular Change.

The most remarkable love-story of the Summer is told by The Port Jervis Union. Four years ago, a gentleman o twenty-three won the heart of a lady of nineteen. She was the daughter of pi ous parents, and although she was not ected with any church, looked with a feeling akin to horror on any thing approaching scepticism. But the time came when she learned that her lover was a deist; that he had no veneration for the Bible, and took no inter est in churches. She was deeply pained by the revelation. She sent for her over and endeavored to convince him of his error, but he was not satisfied with her arguments. She finally wrote to him a tear-stained letter bidding him good-bye forever. The lady mourned, but tried to satisfy herself that she had acted correctly. Two years made her more liberal than she had been. The more she read the more she distrusted her former decision, and she finally became quite as liberal as the lover she had discarded. The lover, too, had undergone a change. Last winter a revival of religion took place in the city in which he was engaged in business Suffice it to say that he united with the Church, and in a short time became a zealous member. He thought over the action of his former sweetheart in discarding him for his infidelity, and wrote her a brief note asking the privilege of once more calling on her. When she timidly apologized for her previous dismissal of him, he, to her surprise, defended her conduct, said she had been in the right, and in her place he would do the same. Her heart sank at these words. She confessed the great change in her sentiments; from being a firm believer in the Bible, she had dis carded it, and with it her belief in any revealed religion. He pleaded with her, urged everything he could think of to induce her to change her mind. he could not, and told him so. He felt that he must not be yoked with an

Coming down Washington street the other day, the pedestrian could not fail to perceive, scored in chalk on the stones of the sidewalk, and in a very commendable style of manuscript, this

"Alice, how could you do it?" A little further on, and scored in charcoal instead of chalk, the legend read

"Susie, how could you do it?" Still further on, and at various points along the sidewalk, the invocation became an appeal to Maud, to Jennie, and to other girls of familiar names. It the pedestrian had watched closely, he would have seen a boy busily engaged in adding to the number of these le-

Of course th a motive. The boy has his motives, as well as the man, and they are frequently brighter and better than those which ring from minds of maturer growth. Doubtless this particular boy was a Sunday School scholar, and had been attracted by the invocative entitling of certain tracts that had been used for sowing the seed of spiritual improve-ment in his youthful breast, such as, "Sinner, Why Will You Die?" "Who Hath Woes?" and the like, and had deemed it his duty to do a little missionary work on his own hook, by making personal appeals to his female playmates. With the sidewalk, chalk and charcoal for his inexpensive materials, he issued at once the titles of his tracts, hoping that their suggestiveness would be sufficient, without a dreary array of platitudes, to impress upon his readers the serious quality of their pec-

It may be presumed that Alice, or. Susie, or Maud, or any of the others, being thus confronted by the personal query, "How could you do it?" at once be reminded of whatever fault she had committed, become sincerely repentant, and vow that she would never do so any more. The word fitly spoken may be to her an apple of gold in a pic-ture of silver. Considering the advancing absenteeism of our clergymen, and the torrid tedium of Summer services, the efforts of such amateur missionaries deserve to be encouraged. Who breathes upon the icy rivers and they dissolve? Who raises to life the sleeping vegetation and clothes all nature in a new dress? Look up to the bended heavens above you; see that exhaustless fountain of light and heat as luminous, as abundant in its supply as when first it came from the plastic hand of God. The same moon, and the same myriad of stars, bestud the firmament, as those that decked the evening of the first hallowed Sab

It is a high, solemn, almost awful thought for every individual man, that his earthly influence, which has a com-mencement, will never, through all ages, have an end! The life of every man is as the well-spring of a stream, whose small beginnings are indeed plain to all, but whose course and destination, as it winds through the expanses of infinite years, only the Omniscient can discern. A farmer who had recently listened o an exposition of the text from Isaiah , "The ox knoweth his owner, and the ass his master's crib; but Israel doth not know, My people doth not consid-er," was giving food to his stock, when one of his oxen, evidently grateful for his care, fell to licking his bare arm. Instantly, with this simple incident, the Holy Spirit flashed conviction on the Holy Spirit hashed conviction on the farmer's mind. He burst into tears, and exclaimed: "Yes, it is all true. How wonderful is God's Word! This poor dumb brute is really more grateful to me than I am to God, and yet I am in debt to him for everything. What a sinner I am!" The lesson had found its way to his heart, and wrought there effectually to lead him to Christ.

"A Temple and a Song."

Brooklyn Eagle. After describing a glorious temple, whence the voices of all living things could be heard praising the Creator, the essay concluded as follows:

Praise Him, all of His creation, Come, with ours your voices raise; Let it ring throughout the eons, Our united hymn of praise.

Praise the Lord, oh, creatures, praise Him, Join with ours your anthem glad; Let no heart be ever silent Let no beart be ever sad.

Angel hosts take up the strain, Praise the Lord throughout the ages, Echoing our glad refrain. Then more softly fell the music,

Swell the music up to heaven,

The Thomasburg Barbecue. Mr. Jno. C. Blake renewed his annual barbecue at the Thomasburg vineyard on the 4th. A party of the prominent commercial and professional gentlemen were invited who showed their high appreciation by attending to a man.

These annual feasts provided for his friends by Mr. Blake are so much enjoyed that a number of our leading citizens will make no other engagement for the Fourth of July.

Mr. Blake succeeds in everything he undertakes, and each successive year his entertainment is an improvement on the former one.

A party of sixty invited guests met together for a day of social enjoyment. They were treated to every amusement possible to such an occasiou: the refreshments being unexceptionally good. The barbecue and epicurean dishes spread under the cool shade of the forest trees made a feast that would honor the table of a king. Colonel T. C. Fuller responded to a toast to the memory of the late Colone! D. M. Carter, who was wont to gather around the same festive board and share the pleasures of the congenial souls who were then commemorating him. The day was spent in pleasure more genuine

WADDILL, Esq., LYNCHBURG, VA.—Dear Sir: ing a certificate from you in reference to the "Iron and Alum Mass," of the Seven Springs, in Washington county, Va., in relation to its efficacy for Liver Diseases, would you have the kindness to inform me whether you used the "Mass" or the "Water;" also, a description of the symptoms and such other information as you may deem pertinent. I am a long-time sufferer with Liver Complaint, and naturally feel very anxious on the subject of a remedy that will afford me even temporary relief. Your early reply will greatly oblige, very respectfully, WILLIAM BARR.

LYNCHBURG, Va., May 12, 1879.—WM. BARR, Esq., Bovine, Mississippi—Dear Sir: Your inquiry in regard to the "Liver case" which was effectually cured in my family from using the "Seven Springs Mass," is before me, The case referred to in my certificate was that of my wife's sister, who is now in her 80th year, and has been a member of my family for the last 27 years. She had been afflicted with Liver Disease for 30 years, sometimes almost dying with pains in the back, breast, and heaviness of the chest, heart-burns (intensely), sick stomach, vomiting, &c. I procured a few bottles of the "Mass" for her, and very soon after she began the use of it, her health commenced to get better, and she con tinued steadily to improve, and at this writing, so old, seemingly in as good health as a person who had never been afflicted with these diseases. She attributes her cure entirely to the efficacy of the "Seven Springs Mass," I regard it one of the greatest family medicines we have access to, not only for such diseases as above indicated, but for various other complaints for which it is recommended. Hoping these answers satisfactory, I am, very truly, A. WAD-DILL, Proprietor Lynchburg News.

REMEDIES Infallibly Cure all Skin and Scalp Diseases, Scaly Eruptions, Itchings,

and Irritations. The testimonials of permanent cures of Skin and Scalp Diseases which have been the torture of a lifetime by the Cuticura Remedies, are more wonderful than any methods or remedies known to the medical methods or remedies known to the medical profession.

Cuticura Resolvent, a powerful Blood Purifier, is the only purifying agent which finds its way into the circulating fluid and thence through the oil and sweat glands to the surface of the skin, thus destroying the poisonous elements with which these vessels have been daily charged. Cuticura, The Great Skin Cure, applied externally, arrests all unnatural or morbid growth which cover the surface of the diseased glands and tubes with Scaly, Itching, and Irritating Humors, speedily it removes them leaving the pores open, healthy, and free from diseased particles of matter.

Thus internally and externally do these great remedies act in conjunction, performing cures that have astonished the most noted physicians of the day.

Salt Rheum for 30 Years On the Head, Face, and Greater Part of the Body, Cured.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen,—
I have been a great sufferer with Salt Rheum for 30 years, commencing in my head and face and extending over the greater part of my body. I have taken gallons of medicines for the blood of different hinds and tried good physicians all of which lons of medicines for the blood of different kinds and tried good physicians, all of which did me no good, and I came to the conclusion that I could not be cured. But a friend called my attention to an article in the Union on skin diseases, and I got a box of Cuticura. The first application was a great relief and the third took the scales all off, and I felt like a new man. I have used three 50-cent boxes and my skin is smooth and I consider myseif entirely cured. Hoping that this may be seen by some one afflicted as I have been (if there is any) is my earnest wish. And I cheerfully recommend it to all persons afflicted with like diseases.

Yours truly,

B. WILSON LORD.

AGAWAM, MASS., Sept. 9, 1878. The Cuticura Soap should be used for cleansing all diseased surfaces, as most soaps are injurious to the skin.

LEPROST.

A Modern Miracle, Astonishing Results from the use of Cuticura.

Messrs. Weeks & Potter: Gentlemen.—
We have a case of Leprosy in our poorhouse which is being cured by your Cuticura remedies The county had employed all of our doctors and had sent to New York for advice, but to no avail.

The patient commenced using the Cuticura and immediately began getting better.
He had been confined to his bed for two and one half years. Had not had his clothes on during this time.

Last week he dressed When he walked, there would at least one quart of scales come off of him.
This happened every day.
We think it is a wonderful cure. We think it is a wonderful cure.
We do not think he is cured, but he is in a fair way to be cured to say the least.
Yours truly,

Druggists and Book, ellers.
ALLEGAN, MICH., Feb. 11, 1879.
NOTE.—Messrs. Dunning Brothers are thoroughly reliable gentlemen, and were unknown to us prior to the receipt of this letter. We firmfy believe this Cuticura will permanently cure this very severe case of Leprosy, as it has done many others.
